'NO MORE YEARS': A crowd chanting slogans against President Bush marches in Manhattan on Sunday.

Dissent Greets GOP in N.Y.

NEW YORK | Bearing flag-draped boxes resembling coffins and fly-swatters with President Bush's image, more than 100,000 protesters peacefully swarmed Manhattan's streets on the eve of the Republican National Convention to demand that President Bush be turned out of office.

Flanked by police in riot gear, the protesters moved through the fortified city, loudly and exuberantly chanting slogans such as "No more years." They accused the Bush White House of prosecuting an unjust war in Iraq, making the country poorer and undermining abortion rights.

There were no reports of major violence and about 100 scattered arrests.

Police gave no official crowd estimate, though one law enforcement official, speaking on condition of anonymity, put the crowd at 120,000; organizers claimed it was 400,000.

The march snaked in a circular route around midtown Manhattan, shutting down dozens of blocks and bringing out hordes of police in a city already girded against terrorist attacks.

"They chose New York, where they're universally hated," said writer Laurie Russo, 41, of the New York borough of Queens. "They exploited 9/11 by having it in New York at this time." SARA KUGLER (AP)

16 Killed In Afghan Attacks

Blasts strike Reston-based contractor, religious school

KABUL, AFGHANISTAN | A powerful car bomb detonated outside the office of a U.S. security contractor in the Afghan capital Sunday, killing at least seven people, including two Americans, and wounding several others, officials and witnesses said.

Within two hours, a purported Taliban spokesman had claimed responsibility for the attack in phone calls to two news agencies.

Earlier, a blast wrecked a religious school in southeastern Afghanistan, reportedly killing at least eight children and one adult and underlining the country's fragile security as it moves toward its first post-Taliban election in October.

Security officials have issued several warnings in recent weeks about possible car bombings and suicide attacks in the Afghan capital. NATO forces patrolling Kabul have warned that anti-government militants, including the ousted Taliban, could try to mount spectacular attacks in a bid to disrupt the landmark presidential election scheduled for Oct. 9.

The Kabul explosion hit the office of Dyncorp Inc., an American firm based in Reston, Va., that provides security for Afghan President Hamid Karzai and works for the U.S. government in Iraq, said Nick Downie of the Afghanistan NGO Security Office.

Karzai and U.S. Ambassador Zalmay Khalilzad expressed shock at the bombing.

An American embassy statement said the contractor also was involved in a project to train Afghan police, a key element of the internationally backed plan to prevent the country from reverting to a haven for al Qaeda militants. AMIR SHAH (AP)

SURPRISES | Catch and Release An 11-year-old boy from Duluth, Minn., was hunting frogs on Island Lake when he became the prey. A large fish attacked Mason DeRosier Thursday as he and his young sister were wading in a foot of water.

DeRosier said the fish bit him on the foot and wouldn't let go. "I smacked it in the head and tried to pry it off my foot," he said. "He let go, but he bit my hand." The resulting wounds required 11 stitches. (AP) EyeOpeners | Page 2

BIG THINGS

Definitely Not A Low-Carb Snack

The recipe: Take 660 pounds of flour, half a pound of dry yeast, 53 pounds of malt and 12½ pounds of salt. Mix, boil in 900 gallons of water for 30 minutes, bake at 300 degrees for 10 hours. The hoped-for result: the world's biggest bagel. The 2004 New York State Fair in Syracuse was the backdrop Friday as bakers for Bruegger's Bagels popped out an 868-pound bagel in search of a spot in the Guinness Book of World Records. The giant bagel measured 6 feet in diameter and required a small crane to hoist it out of its custom-built oven. Organizers are still waiting for word from Guinness officials on whether they succeeded in breaking the record. (AP)

Do-It-Yourself Lipo

An overweight plastic surgeon in Austin, Texas, performed liposuction on himself on camera to promote the potential use of stem cells that can be harvest-

PATRIOTISM

Buy a Vote

It took authorities in Elyria, Ohio, just 12 hours to hear about and stop a man's eBay offer to sell his vote.

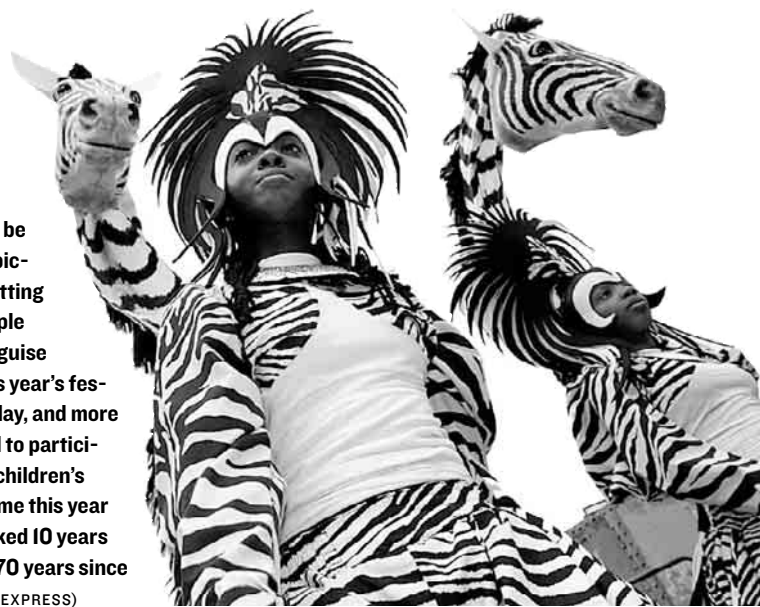

James Pengov, 36, said he was hoping to land enough money from selling his vote to pay medical bills. "Up for auction is MY VOTE!" said Pengov's Aug. 19 posting. The item, advertised as "Presidential Vote for Sale," had a starting bid of $50. Pengov told prospective buyers he generally votes Republican, but expressed dissatisfaction with both parties. He said he didn't know that selling a vote was illegal. (AP)

FESTIVALS

Of All Stripes

Sometimes it takes no color at all to be colorful. Just witness the revelers pictured here who, during Sunday's Notting Hill Carnival in London, donned simple striped black-and-white garb to disguise themselves as a herd of zebras. This year's festival marked the event's 40th birthday, and more than a million people were expected to participate, Reuters reported. Formerly a children's celebration, the carnival, with a theme this year of "Freedom and Justice," also marked 10 years since the genocide in Rwanda and 170 years since the abolition of slavery in Trinidad. Cheney Speech Kicks Off GOP Rally

Vice president hails Bush's leadership at convention opener

NEW YORK | The Manhattan skyline at his back, Vice President Dick Cheney remembered the terrorist attacks on this city and promised that with a second term President Bush would be strong and steadfast in keeping the nation safe.

Cheney told a rally of local supporters on historic Ellis Island that it is the duty of his generation to keep the nation safe for generations to come.

"A sure reminder of that is the skyline of this great city, which was altered so violently on Sept. 11, 2001," said Cheney, who spoke with the lower Manhattan skyline sprawling behind him.

The welcome rally for the vice president was billed as a kickoff to the convention, which convenes Monday across New York Harbor in Madison Square Garden.

OPENING ACT: Vice President Dick Cheney waves to supporters as he arrives for a rally at Ellis Island, N.Y., on Sunday to kick off the Republican National Convention.

"It's a special honor to kick things off here on this island, the gateway to America for so many people," said Cheney.

Later Sunday, Cheney visited the podium at Madison Square Garden, where he'll deliver his acceptance speech Wednesday evening. Unlike many vice presidential candidates, Cheney plans to be on hand for most of the convention, watching the opening session Monday morning and each evening's proceedings at the event site. LAURA MECKLER (AP)

Convention Security Out in Force

NEW YORK | Trash cans are welded shut, armed guards are watching rail yards and thousands of cops are patrolling Penn Station. North America's busiest train station is the epicenter of the city's largest police deployment in memory as the Republican convention gets underway.

Officers will be aboard every one of the more than 1,000 subway and commuter trains that roll daily into the labyrinth of platforms and tunnels beneath Madison Square Garden. Passengers will share platforms with bomb-sniffing dogs and chemical weapons detectors.

Security officials say police, National Guard members and state troopers will blanket the convention and the nation's largest public transit system, keeping them safe and running smoothly.

Penn Station will be patrolled by 3,000 police officers. As many as 7,000 more officers will protect Madison Square Garden, the subways and convention-related sites — joined by the Secret Service, FBI and thousands of corrections officers, transit police and state troopers from the region. (AP)

Gaston Slams S.C. Coast

Tropical storm makes landfall with winds near hurricane force

MOUNT PLEASANT, S.C. | Tropical Storm Gaston sloshed ashore in South Carolina Sunday with near hurricane-force winds, spinning sheets of rain that flooded roads as the storm knocked out power to thousands of people.

Gaston made landfall near McClellanville, a small fishing village that was walloped by Hurricane Charley earlier this month when it came ashore for a second time after devastating southwest Florida.

Gov. Mark Sanford declared a state of emergency Sunday and encouraged "folks to stay in their homes for the time being so damage-assessment crews, utility crews and debris-removal crews can do their jobs."

Hundreds of residents were urged to evacuate ahead of the storm, which dropped as much as 8 inches of rain in some areas.

In the harbor in Charleston, Gaston flooded streets and pushed over power poles. At least 125,000 people were without power at the height of the storm.

By midday, Gaston was moving north toward inland South Carolina, weakening along the way but still prompting flood watches and warnings of wind gusts as high as 60 mph. BRUCE SMITH (AP)

Science Eyes a Remedy for Addicts

Researchers explore using existing drugs to treat addictions

NEW YORK | Can the antidepressant Prozac help you kick cocaine? Can Ritalin, which is meant for hyperactivity? If you're an alcoholic, could you get help staying sober by taking an anti-nausea drug used by cancer patients?

Scientists are exploring those questions right now. In fact, in the field of addiction medicine, one of the hottest sources of new drugs is ... old drugs.

Despite years of research, there is no drug approved in the United States for treating cocaine dependence. To find such a treatment, the National Institute on Drug Abuse is sponsoring human studies of 21 medicines already on the market for something else.

Over at the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism, nearly all the potential alcoholism drugs tested in people under institute sponsorship over the past 10 years were previously approved for some other use, says Raye Litten, co-leader of the institute's medications development team.

It can certainly work. In 1997, for example, the government approved a stop-smoking pill called Zyban, which was in fact the older antidepressant Wellbutrin.

To be sure, experts haven't given up on developing new drugs. Most NIAAA-funded drug studies for alcoholism that are in early stage testing are brand-new drugs, Litten said. MALCOLM RITTER (AP)

Almanac Predicts Wild Winter Ahead

LEWISTON, MAINE | Gas up the snowblower but don't put away your umbrella: The Farmers' Almanac is predicting a wild winter with heavy precipitation and dramatic temperature swings in the Northeast.

The northern Plains and Great Lakes will be snowy, the almanac says, while it will be milder in the southern half of the country. The Northeast will have unusually wet weather — either as rain or snow.

"The big thing is it's going to be a winter of extremes," said managing editor Sandi Duncan of the almanac's predictions, which hit newsstands Tuesday. (AP)

Chechens Elect New Leader

Voters choose Russia's hand-picked candidate to run war-torn region

GROZNY, RUSSIA | The Russian government's choice for president of war-ravaged Chechnya appeared to win Sunday in an election tainted by charges of fraud and shadowed by last week's apparent terrorist destruction of two airliners.

Little more than two hours after polls closed, acting Chechen president Sergei Abramov said preliminary results showed Maj. Gen. Alu Alkhanov, the republic's top police official and the Russian government's new choice, had passed the 50-percent mark needed to win, the Interfax news agency reported.

Violence shadowed the vote. A man blew himself up near a polling station after trying to enter it carrying a package, officials said. Worries about terrorism were stoked by the crashes of two Russian airliners five days before the election; officials said traces of explosives were found in the wreckage and there are suspicious two Chechen women conducted the suicide attacks.

A Chechen couple dances in front of a polling station in Grozny on Sunday. Preliminary results showed Maj. Gen. Alu Alkhanov had won the vote, Interfax reported.

Seven candidates contended to replace the previous Kremlin-backed Chechen president, Akhmad Kadyrov, who was assassinated in May. But the lack of any real opposition to Alkhanov has led human rights groups and many Chechens to assume the election result is a foregone conclusion.

The election is part of the Kremlin's strategy for the war-torn region. Russian forces have been unable to wipe out Chechen rebels and the Kremlin, refusing to negotiate, has focused on trying to restore civil society. MIKE ECKEL (AP)

Fewer Wars Under Way, Peace Researchers Say

Number of conflicts drops sharply from '90s

The chilling sights and sounds of war fill newspapers and television screens worldwide, but war itself is in decline, researchers report.

The authoritative Stockholm International Peace Research Institute, in a 2004 Yearbook report obtained by The Associated Press in advance of publication, says 19 major armed conflicts were under way worldwide in 2003, a sharp drop from 33 wars counted in 1991.

The Canadian organization Project Ploughshares, using broader criteria to define armed conflict, says in its new annual report that the number of conflicts declined to 36 in 2003, from a peak of 44 in 1995.

Also, the number killed in battle has fallen to its lowest point in the post-World War II period, dipping below 20,000 a year, according to the Stockholm study. A collaboration with Sweden's Uppsala University, the report will estimate battle-related deaths worldwide at 15,000 in 2002 and, because of the Iraq war, rising to 20,000 in 2003.

Those estimates are sharply down from annual tolls ranging from 40,000 to 100,000 in the 1990s, a time of major costly conflicts in such places as the former Zaire and Sudan, and from a post-World War II peak of 700,000 in 1951. CHARLES J. HANLEY (AP)

CRITERIA: The Stockholm study counts wars that have produced 1,000 or more deaths in a single year. Project Ploughshares counts any conflict that produces 1,000 deaths cumulatively.

Chavez Pledges To Take Over 'Idle' Land in Venezuela

CARACAS, VENEZUELA | Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez said Sunday that as part of his deepening "revolution," he will enforce an agriculture law that allows the government to tax and expropriate idle lots.

"We are going after idle land and are going to put it to work," Chavez said during his weekly television and radio show.

Chavez, who defeated a recall referendum against him on Aug. 15, vowed to start strictly enforcing the 2001 Land Law, which sanctions idle lands with taxes or by expropriating them. Businessmen and farmers accuse left-wing Chavez of using the law to install a communist dictatorship in the country.

Chavez said he will try to negotiate with the landowners first to try to persuade them to voluntarily sell their lands to the government. (AP)

France Pushes for Hostages' Release

Chirac sends envoy to Cairo to help free journalists held in Iraq

PARIS | President Jacques Chirac vowed Sunday to spare no effort to free two French reporters held hostage in Iraq by militants reportedly demanding that France scrap its ban on Islamic head scarves in state schools.

Chirac sought to appeal to the kidnappers with an implicit reminder that France opposed the U.S.-led invasion of Iraq. But he did not directly respond to their reported demand that the ban be overturned within 48 hours.

"France ensures equality, the respect and protection of the free practicing of all religions," a solemn-looking Chirac said in a televised address. "These values of respect and tolerance inspire our actions everywhere in the world. ... They also inspired France's policy in Iraq."

The militants claiming to hold Christian Chesnot and Georges Malbrunot described the head scarf law as "an aggression on the Islamic religion and personal freedoms," according to Arab TV station Al-Jazeera.

Chirac said Foreign Minister Michel Barnier was rushing to the Middle East to try to help win the reporters' release. Barnier was leaving Sunday night for Cairo, Egypt, the government said. (AP)

CIA-DOD Rivalry Behind Spy Case, Top Israeli Says

JERUSALEM | Allegations of Israeli spying in the United States are false and may be the result of internal conflicts between the Pentagon and the CIA, an Israeli Cabinet minister said Sunday.

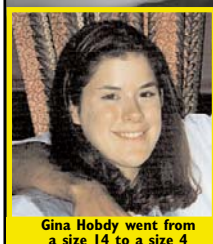

"I hope it's all a mistake or misunderstanding of some kind," said Natan Sharansky, the first Israeli Cabinet member to comment publicly on the matter. He was speaking to Canadian Broadcasting Corp.

U.S. officials said Saturday that the FBI has spent more than a year investigating whether Pentagon analyst Larry Franklin funneled classified material about Iran to Israel through the American Israel Public Affairs Committee.

Franklin has not responded to requests for comment. (AP)

Police Make Big Drug Bust in SE

WASHINGTON | District of Columbia police seized marijuana, ecstasy pills and cash in a drug bust that they say will make a dent in the Southeast D.C. drug trade.

Twelve-hundred ecstasy pills, three pounds of marijuana and $20,000 were found Friday night at an apartment on 28th Street, police said. The drugs are worth about $50,000, according to police. Two tenants showed up during the search and were arrested. They are scheduled to be in court Monday. (AP)

SINCE YOU ASKED

Q Why does Metro use buses without air-conditioning?

A Every bus is supposed to have a working AC, a Metro spokesman said. But you could be on a hot bus if the AC fails mid-route. Drivers are told to finish the run, then take the bus in for service.

Also, since nearly all 1,450 buses need to be on the road during parts of the peak periods, buses with broken AC are sometimes used for an hour or two on the shortest routes, the spokesman said. DANNY FREEDMAN (EXPRESS)

D.C. Republicans Seek Gains on Voting Rights

WASHINGTON | Local Republicans planned to draw attention to the District's lack of voting rights this week after making some home rule gains before the start of the party's national convention in New York.

But the city's top two elected Republicans — D.C. Council members David Catania and Carol Schwartz — are not part of the action. Catania, who is openly gay, was kicked off the 19-member delegation because he wouldn't support President Bush's re-election bid because of Bush's call for a constitutional amendment banning same-sex marriage. Schwartz and fellow delegate Mark L. Sibley resigned in a show of support for Catania.

The remaining D.C. delegation was able to win support in the national platform for eliminating Congressional approval of District laws and the city's annual budget, D.C. Republican Committee Chairman Betsy Werronen said. But efforts to add language supporting full voting rights in the House of Representatives for the District failed. CANDACE SMITH (AP)

Greeks Close Games in Style

Athens proved it was up to the challenge of hosting the Olympics

ATHENS, GREECE | Efharisto!

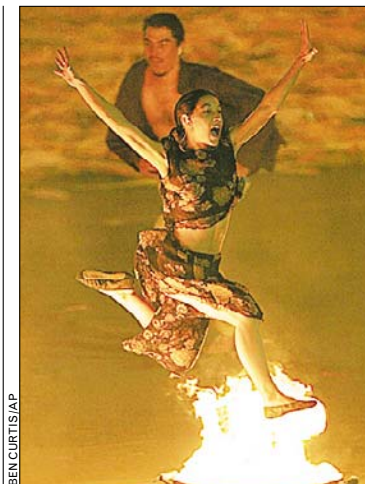

A nervous world learned the Greek word for thank you and repeated it endlessly at an astonishingly successful Athens Olympics that quelled fears, surprised skeptics and greatly honored the birthplace of the games.

Efharisto, Athens, for architectural masterpieces of stadiums and arenas that showcased record performances. The fountain sprays, reflecting pools and soaring arches. The undulating, giant white Wall of Nations that caught the whispering wind, bringing music to our ears and smiles to our faces thanks to remarkable story lines.

These Olympics saw the rise of China as a sports superpower as it positioned itself for the 2008 games in Beijing. The United States, buoyed by the brilliance of swimming star Michael Phelps but embarrassed by the three losses and mere bronze of its once-vaunted men's basketball team, won the most medals. Americans beat their target of 100 by three, 35 of them gold. Russia finished second with 92, including 27 gold.

Fireworks and spectacular lighting kicked off the closing ceremony Sunday night, a two-hour extravaganza of folk dancing and music in the Olympic tradition that summed up the glee and relief the games brought to Greece. Afterward, thousands of athletes marched into Olympic stadium, waving their arms and flags, snapping photos of each other, hugging and basking in the cheers of 70,000 fans.

"You have won," International Olympic Committee president Jacques Rogge told the Greek people. "You have won by brilliantly meeting the tough challenge of holding the games."

"These were unforgettable, dream games." STEVE WILSTEIN (AP)

Italian Captures A Wild Marathon

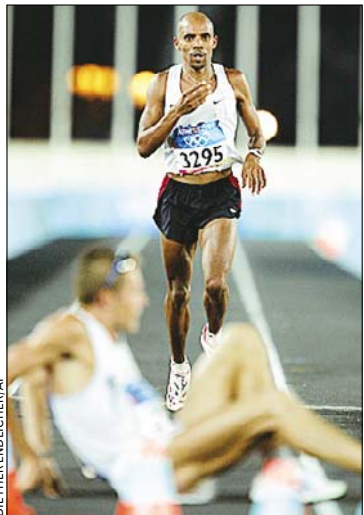

Defrocked priest grabs leader late in race, American wins silver

MARATHON | Three miles from the finish, the marathon leader was grabbed by a defrocked priest wearing a red kilt, green beret and matching knee-high socks. An American won a medal — something that hadn't happened in this event in 28 years.

Definitely a bizarre way to end an Olympics. Italy's Stefano Baldini surged ahead with two miles to go and American Meb Keflezighi finished a surprising second in a race disrupted by a costumed intruder from Ireland.

With three miles left, Vanderlei de Lima of Brazil was clinging to a shrinking lead when he was shoved into the curbside throng by the assailant, identified as Cornelius Horan.

De Lima was able to get back into the race, but he lost several more seconds and ended up with the bronze medal.

Later, he said the intruder cost him a shot at the gold.

"If you stop in a marathon, you struggle the next three or four kilometers. It's hard to get your rhythm back," he said. "I don't know if I would have won, but things would have been different." BOB BAUM (AP)

America's Golden Boxer

In memory of father, light heavyweight Ward gives U.S. a champion

BOXING | Andre Ward and his father had been too close not to share this moment. Standing on the medal podium, Ward looked upward and blew a kiss to the man who had meant so much to him.

Frank Ward would have been proud of his son — an Olympic gold medalist. "I believe he was looking down on me," Ward said. "I just wish he was here."

Boxing in the memory of his late father, Ward became the only American boxer to win a gold medal, beating Magomed Aripgadiev of Belarus with a 20-13 decision on Sunday to claim the light heavyweight title.

GYMNASTICS | South Korea made a last-ditch push for the gymnastics gold medal given to Paul Hamm, appealing to sports' international arbitration panel to say "yes" when everyone else has said "no way."

Yang Tae-young asked the Court of Arbitration for Sport to order officials to adjust the rankings from the all-around so he gets gold and Hamm gets silver. The International Gymnastics Federation has said it won't change its results, and the International Olympic Committee has refused to even consider the idea. (AP)

Mitchell, Russell Among The Redskins' First Cuts

REDSKINS | Middle linebacker Kevin Mitchell and wide receiver Cliff Russell were among 10 cuts made Sunday as the Washington Redskins started to trim their roster before Tuesday's deadline.

Washington has four more players to cut as all teams must have their rosters down to 65 players by 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Mitchell, a 10-year veteran, had his best year in 2001 when he made 82 tackles. Mitchell started in Washington's preseason opener, but was soon pushed down the depth chart behind Antonio Pierce.

Russell, a third-round pick in the 2002 draft, simply had a hard time getting on the field. A knee injury ended the receiver's rookie season and he has been hampered

Coach Joe Gibbs said that trimming the rosters is still a part of the job he dreads. "It's the worst part of what we do," Gibbs said. (AP)

Malibu Storm is getting attention from coast to country

FRESH FACES | With a name like Malibu Storm, siblings Dana Burke, Lauren Mills and Michael Alden might be mistaken for a surf trio.

But the young threesome, who grew up near Malibu, Calif., are quickly becoming known for their fresh, bluegrass-inflected take on country music.

Malibu Storm's self-titled Rounder debut album has yielded a country single and video version of Def Leppard's classic "Photograph."

"We love all types of music besides country, so we're big Def Leppard fans," explained bassist/vocalist Alden, whose twin sisters Burke and Mills both sing and play banjo and fiddle, respectively.

Noting that the 1983 original came out before she was born, Burke added, "A lot of our friends don't know it's a Def Leppard song. They find out Mutt Lange wrote it and think it's a country song because they associate him with Shania Twain."

Other noteworthy cuts include a country reworking of the 1966 Lee Dorsey hit "Working in a Coal BOOGIEBOARDS & BANJOS: The siblings of Storm were raised surfside but play landlocked music — bluegrass and country.

Mine" and Janis Ian's ballad "Some People's Lives."

While Mills' cat-dedicated instrumental "Clover" is the only Malibu Storm original, Alden said the group is writing songs for its next release, and that every song on the current album is significant in terms of "who we are and what's going on in our lives."

Burke's first musical step came when she was 9 or 10 and rummaging through the garage.

"I stumbled upon a banjo my dad had bought for $20 when he was in college that was missing a string and sounded horrible — but I thought it sounded great," she said.

"It reminded me of the records I loved when I was 5, like Dolly Parton records and this old Disney record 'Pardners,' which was a cowboy album of Mickey and Donald and Goofy singing country songs."

Burke started playing banjo and won a number of contests, inspiring her twin to learn fiddle and her brother to become a contest-winning vocalist.

"People see banjo and fiddle and go 'bluegrass,'" said Alden, "but we're a country band with bluegrass roots." JIM BESSMAN (BILLBOARD)

Fantasy Island: 'Hawaii' Cops

DEBUT | What is it with vomit? There it is in NBC's new fall drama "Hawaii" (premiering Wednesday at 8 p.m.) when hot young police detectives find four severed heads in a car trunk. It's the sort of stuff 12-year-old boys love, and this might be the cop show for them.

Half the dialogue could spring directly from "Starksy & Hutch," with its quippy banter and exasperated commander (Cary Tagawa) barking warnings to the too-cool kid cops (Ivan Sergei and Eric Balfour.)

"DUDE, WHERE'S MY BARF?" Sergei and Balfour on the case in "Hawaii."

Filmed on location, "Hawaii" is full of green mountains and lava fields, bikinied bods and beachside mansions. This is seen through the eyes of the new guy, Sharif Atkins. He's teamed with Michael Biehn as the veteran officer given to hackneyed pep talks. The token woman is Aya Sumika's ambitious officer, whom the pilot manages to get into a hot tub and a debasing situation.

"Hawaii" tries to be both dumb fun and dark, bloody drama. Like any adolescent, it's finding its way.

MOVE OVER, BARTLET: Mr. Smits goes to Washington when Jimmy signs on to NBC's "The West Wing" as a Houston congressman with his eyes on the Oval Office.

Virtual Upset

In a surprise victory, 'ESPN NFL' trounces top dog 'Madden '05'

VIDEO GAMES | The virtual football championship matchup this year pits EA's "Madden NFL 2005" against "ESPN NFL 2K5" from Sega's ESPN Videogames division.

Both titles excel at delivering the National Football League experience to your living room through a combination of excellent controls, online gameplay and improved defensive features. But there are some key differences, one of the most obvious being price. "NFL 2K5" goes for a comfortable $20; "Madden 2005" is a steep $50.

The new VIP system of "NFL 2K5" tracks tendencies and stats, from your favorite "hot routes" to the kind of defense you like to use on third and long.

You can then load and play against your own VIP profile, practice against a friend's profile, or download an opponent's VIP profile from Microsoft's Xbox Live online service to get a glimpse of their playing strategies. It's the closest any game as come to mimicking human playing tendencies.

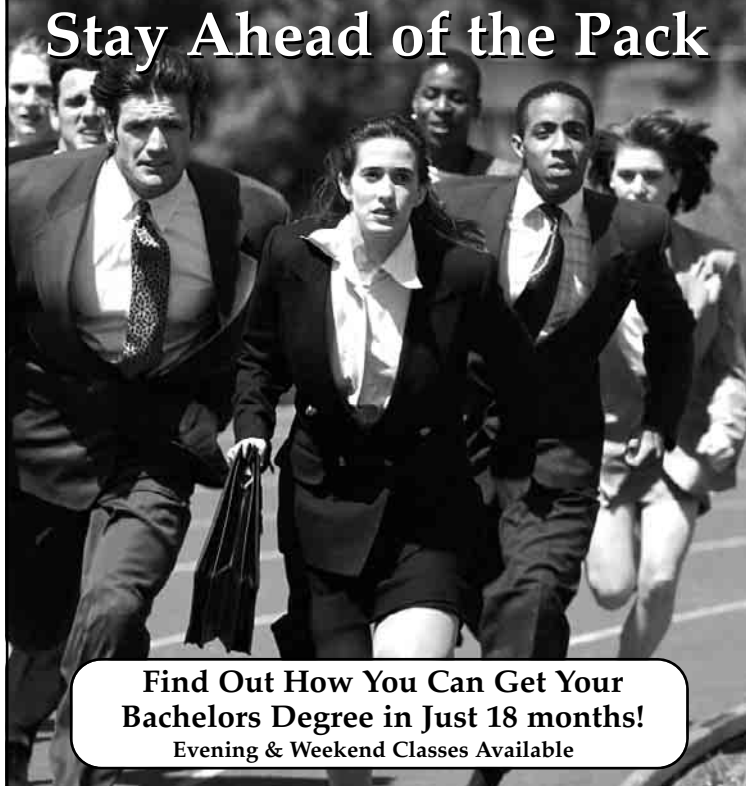

On the other side of the virtual gridiron is "Madden NFL 2005." While last year's "Madden 2004" concentrated on offense, this version ups its defense. Unfortunately, that progress comes at the expense of key offensive elements, and establishing a realistic running game on the All-Pro and All-Madden levels is unrealistically hard.

Both games do a great job of recreating the thrill of professional football, but the edge goes to "NFL 2K5" for its lower price and superior graphics and presentation.

1001 16th Street, Washington, D.C. 20036

Leading SEARCH ENGINE MARKETING experts show you how to BUILD your BUSINESS with SEARCH.

Is your Web site visible in search engines?

If not, you're losing business. Get a top position and new customers will find your company instantly! Of course, getting to the top of search results takes a little work. And for many companies, it's well worth it.

In our one-day workshop, you'll learn Web site design optimization techniques to score rankings, plus advertising strategies to make your pay-per-click campaigns more profitable. This seminar is packed with practical tips, tools and case studies to show you how to improve your efforts immediately.

SHOT DOWN: "Checkpoint," the controversial Nicholson Baker novel about a man who wants to kill President Bush, hasn't even sold 6,500 copies despite much hype. "Not every book you publish becomes a best seller," said Alfred A. Knopf publicist Paul Bogaards. How true but beside the point.

'Hero' Saves Weekend B.O.

BOX OFFICE | "Hero," the acclaimed martial-arts epic starring Jet Li, vanquished giant snakes, serial killers and superbabies to debut as the top weekend film with $17.8 million.

"Anacondas: The Hunt for the Blood Orchid," a sequel to 1997's monster-serpent flick, opened in second place with $13.2 million, according to studio estimates Sunday.

The weekend's other new movies debuted weakly. The serial-killer tale "Suspect Zero" came in at No. 10 with $3.4 million.

"Superbabies: Baby Geniuses 2," a follow-up to the 1999 kid flick, finished at No. 11 with $3.3 million.

The previous weekend's No. 1 movie, "Exorcist: The Beginning," tumbled to fifth-place with $6.7 million, a steep 63 percent drop from its $18.1 million debut.

With Hollywood's summer season wrapping up over Labor Day weekend, the industry will finish slightly ahead of summer 2003's revenue record of $3.9 billion. But factoring in higher admission prices, the number of tickets sold will lag a bit behind last summer's.

"Hero," nominated for the foreign-language Academy Award for 2002, is director Zhang Yimou's saga of China some 2,000 years ago. The film stars a lineup of Asian superstars that distributor Miramax calls the "Ocean's Eleven" of Chinese films. DAVID GERMAIN (AP)

BRAWL ON A BIAS CUT: Sportswear designer Tommy Hilfiger chooses among 16 stylish strivers in search of the "fashion trendsetter of tomorrow" in, yes, another celebrity-driven reality show. CBS's "The Cut" is taking applications now, darling.

Republican Convention's TV Closeup

CONVENTION WATCH | Viewers who want to take in the Republican National Convention with a minimum of hyperthyroid blather would be well served to watch the whole shebang on PBS.

Jim Lehrer will host three hours of "NewsHour" coverage (8 p.m., PBS) every night through Thursday. Tonight's scheduled speakers include New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg, former New York Mayor Rudolph Giuliani and CAMERA READY: Madison Square Garden gets gussied up for the folks at home.

Arizona Sen. John McCain.

Mark Shields and David Brooks will join Lehrer to provide commentary and political analysis. During the Democrats' gathering, they discussed issues and personalities with a minimum of rancor, ridicule and rumor. I also enjoyed the long-view perspective of presidential historians Michael Beschloss, Richard Norton Smith and Meena Bose.

Viewers in search of a sillier take on the quadrennial spectacle should turn to "The Daily Show" (11 p.m., Comedy Central) special "Indecision 2004: Midway to the Election Spectacular." Jon Stewart will recap the night's activities throughout the convention. KEVIN MCDONOUGH (UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE)

Careers

LIVE ONLINE

Life at Work

AMY JOYCE's column appears Sundays in The Washington Post. She chats every Tuesday at 11 a.m. on washingtonpost.com/liveonline.

How can I lessen resentment towards a particular co-worker? She's been trying to get pregnant for more than a year, and has been scheduling sick leave for tests, appointments, etc. It adds up, and I get stuck with her extra work.

Does she have the sick leave? Does she do her work? How much extra work do you actually have to do? It, frankly, is none of your business why she's gone, or how she's choosing to live her life. The only thing you need to be concerned about here is how your workload has changed, if at all.

Here's a tip from the other side of the recruiting fence. Lately, I've been seeing a lot of cover letters with really, er, "creative" (weird) opening paragraphs. Things like obscure literary or musical references that don't quite make sense and don't relate to the job. My advice is: Don't do it! The recruiter is likely to think you are quite mad.

People are desperate these days for a good job offer. So they get creative. But I completely understand your frustration.

Rain Brain | Weather Forecaster

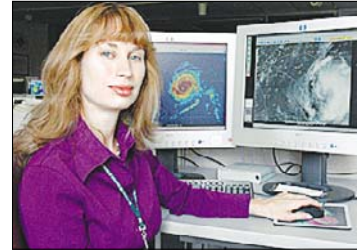

JESSICA CLARK, 30

JOB: Meteorologist at the National Weather Service's Hydrometeorological Prediction Center in Camp Springs, Md.

SALARY: About $63,000 to $82,000

EDUCATION: Bachelor's in physical oceanography from Florida Tech; master's in meteorology from University of Hawaii

WHAT SHE DOES: Clark interprets computer models to build three-day, nationwide forecasts of where and how much precipitation will fall, and she predicts the probability of precipitation for up to a week. She also keeps an eye on tropical systems in the Atlantic. Forecasts primarily feed the media and field offices of the National Weather Service.

WOULD YOU WANT HER JOB? Weather can be a fickle beast, but computer models also have biases that Clark must identify and factor into her forecasts. And you have built-in performance reviews: All forecasts are checked against the actual weather.

Shift work can bring you to the office at any time, and working all night in an office populated mainly by men creates "an interesting dynamic," she said. "You learn a lot about the opposite sex, that's for sure."

HOW YOU CAN GET HER JOB:

Increasingly, a master's degree is required; either your master's or bachelor's should be in meteorology or a closely related earth science, such as hydrology. Other than the government, there are private sector jobs at businesses that forecast weather for shipping and airline companies, and opportunities in the military and media.

Collections

Where does vintage clothing go to retire? Texas, of course

From Givenchy and de la Renta to Balenciaga and Chanel, a dazzling array of haute couture hangs in a storage room at the University of North Texas in Denton.

Rarely seen by the public, the collection of about 15,000 dresses, coats, suits, purses, shoes and more is operated as an appointment-only research tool for designers, educators and students.

It's called the Texas Fashion Collection, and a walk down its aisles is a sweeping look back at more than two centuries of design.

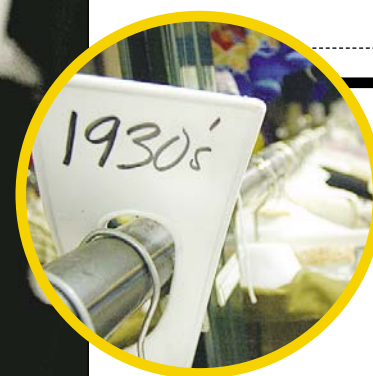

The collection, which includes pieces from Neiman Marcus, Saks Fifth Avenue and other ritzy stores, primarily focuses on items from the late 19th and 20th centuries, dating to the 1820s. But a few pieces, including a child's dress of tan wool with dark brown velvet trim, are believed to have been made as far back as the late 18th century.

There's a purple wedding gown from the 1880s, complete with a boned bodice and matching shoes with straight soles — meaning there was no differentiation between left and right.

In 1938, Stanley and Edward Marcus of Neiman Marcus began preserving the work top designers had done for the company. In the mid-1940s, the brothers dedicated the collection in honor of their aunt, fashion maven Carrie Marcus Neiman. The collection eventually became part of the Dallas Museum of Fashion, which was moved to the Denton campus in 1972. Renamed the Texas Fashion Collection, the treasure trove is now part of the school's Visual Arts Department, which relies on donations.

Among the men's wear included is a charcoal gray wool suit worn by Stanley Marcus to the 1956 wedding of Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier of Monaco and a 1960s jacket of black alligator, done by Paco Rabanne.

A few items were worn by famous people, including a black Givenchy suit worn by Audrey Hepburn in the movie "Charade," but most of the pieces came from Texas women with extensive designer wardrobes or older people who make important finds as they clean out their closets.

Dolores Malone, 76, of Houston donated some Bill Blass and Chanel, as well as a coat worn by her mother that was made with triple rows of Russian sable.

"I just decided, 'Get rid of it, Dolores,'" she said. "I think it's for a good cause and they're nice up there." JAMIE STENGLE (AP)

Georgetown University Medical Center

Mini-Medical School - Fall 2004 Session

Join us for eight evenings of immersion into the basics of medical education. You won't be able to practice medicine, but you'll discover how your body works and why sometimes things go wrong - firsthand knowledge that will help you safeguard your health. Georgetown's top-ranked faculty will introduce you to the latest medical advances in areas ranging from human anatomy to bioethics. You'll learn how your immune system protects you, what causes your joints to ache, and how best to replenish fluids and electrolytes after exercise. The classes will be informative, easy to understand, and most of all, fun!

When: Eight consecutive Tuesdays, 7:00 to 9:00pm
September 28 through November 16

Where: Georgetown University Medical Center
3900 Reservoir Road, NW

Cost: $125 for entire series (includes parking)
$100 if registration received by September 14
$75 for GU and GUMC employees

For registration information, please visit our website at www.gumc.georgetown.edu/departments/minimed or email/call us at minimed@georgetown.edu - 202-687-4324

HOT Lanes

Virginia Department of Transportation Chief Engineer MAL KERLEY was online Friday to discuss plans for high-occupancy toll lanes | washingtonpost.com/liveonline

How much will a commuter have to pay on an HOT lane on the Beltway? Will that depend on the distance one goes or will it be a flat fare?

Tolls would vary with the time of day, with the higher toll being charged during peak travel time. It's estimated in 2010 that the toll rate per mile would be about 18 cents. The average toll rate — if you went the total distance — would be about $2.50, and then if you're at the peak toll time, it would be about $5.

The actual tolls would be determined as we develop the agreement and more clearly define exactly where all the entrances would be. This is preliminary information that we have calculated for now.

Will the HOT lane toll system be tied into EZ-Pass?

Yes. VDOT is moving forward to make EZ-Pass available as soon as possible.

How will non-HOT lanes be affected? It appears that at least one lane will be taken away from already overcrowded traffic lanes.

The proposal increases the number of lanes. It will be a 4-2-2-4 lane makeup. There will be 4 general purpose lanes in each direction and 2 HOT lanes in each direction. So we would not be taking any of the existing lanes away.

How will the HOT lanes be enforced? What's going to be the deterrent for cheaters?

Obviously there's concern with enforcement. There would be an increased physical presence of law enforcement, but as we develop the project we'll be looking at the most cost-effective methods in order to enforce the new system. Technology is advancing our ability to enforce this type of tolling system and with the use of cameras and other devices, we plan to enforce it as much as is practically possible.

Corrections

In Friday's edition, we misidentified the origin of the name for "527" groups. The groups are named after the section of IRS code under which they are established. Also, the location of the Sharpie 500 race was incorrect. It's in Bristol, Tenn.

GOOD MANNERS

An Accused Stalker, But A Delightful Houseguest

An Everett, Wash., man accused of harassing AVRIL LAVIGNE's parents and violating a court order has been charged with felony stalking. "He sent wine, photos, CDs and requests for contact," said a prosecutor Friday. Another letter was a "courtesy notification" that he was in Ontario, promising not to drive by her parents' house, spy on them or do "anything creepy." (AP)

RELATIVES

Wow! Matt Damon Has an Uncle? Who Knew?

MATT DAMON's uncle has become the oldest person to swim the English Channel. GEORGE BRUNSTAD, 70, left England on Saturday morning. He finished shortly after midnight, said the Channel Swimming and Piloting Federation. "I thought I could make it, but it was pretty darn uncomfortable," Matt Damon's uncle said just after making it to the coastal town of Sangatte, France. (AP)

SCENTS

That's Not Attitude You're Smelling, Toby

The VIP booths will look like Ford pickups at the I Love This Bar & Grill!, a $9 million Las Vegas restaurant and bar by TOBY KEITH and Harrah's Entertainment Inc. Slated to open next summer, the establishment will be "all Toby all the time," the singer said Friday. "It's gonna reek with attitude and personality," Keith said. (AP)

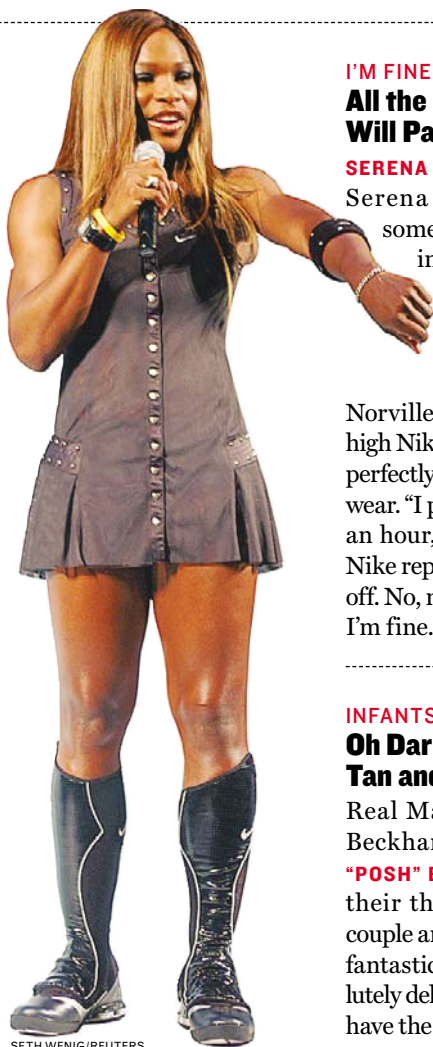

"Whoo-wheel! This place just reeks of marketing and commercialism, man."

I'M FINE. REALLY

All the Money I'm Making Will Pay for the Podiatrist

SERENA WILLIAMS modeled the Serena Collection by Nike — some of which she'll be wearing at the U.S. Open, which starts today — at New York's Niketown on Friday. She insisted to MSNBC's Deborah Norville last week that her knee-high Nike Shox Boots, pictured, are perfectly viable tennis playing footwear. "I practiced in them for about an hour," she said. "And then the Nike rep, he kept saying take them off. No, no. They're so comfortable. I'm fine. Really. I am." (AP)

INFANTS

Oh Darling, He Has Your Tan and My Highlights

Real Madrid soccer star David Beckham and his wife VICTORIA "POSH" BECKHAM are expecting their third child in March, the couple announced Sunday. "This is fantastic news. We are both absolutely delighted. We are planning to have the baby in Spain," the couple said in a joint statement. Victoria Beckham, 30, a former Spice Girl, has delivered two sons: Brooklyn, 5, and Romeo, 2. The marriage of Britain's No. 1 celebrity couple came under strain in April when a former personal aide, Rebecca Loos, claimed she and Beckham had had a 10-day affair. He dismissed the claim as "ludicrous" and "absurd." (AP)

"Brooklyn! We do not touch Mommy's hair or face! Time out. Time out!!"

OPPOSITES

Worlds Collide

Where but the MTV Video Music Awards do overripe starlets like CHRISTINA AGUILERA compete for red-carpet time with Olympic sweetums CARLY PATTERSON? We hope Carly doesn't get corrupted — she's showing a little midriff, there. (EXPRESS)

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone born under the sign of the crab is in a position to make you an important offer, which is in sync with your own immediate desires.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) To leave or to stay? The question is not likely to be answered in any orthodox manner. You may have to throw caution to the wind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) Take advantage of all the tools accessible to you and you can increase your rate of progress dramatically — in the course of a single day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You can earn more, provided you put your own money where your mouth is. Remember, spend money to make money.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A romantic situation may demand more from you than you feel you are able to give. A little more focus could be the answer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A timely brainstorm enables you to step out in a new direction with confidence — without leaving behind all that is familiar to you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Risks are few, but those you do encounter are likely to be complex. You don't want to make the mistake of thinking it's all a piece of cake.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take care

you don't take out your frustrations on someone who doesn't deserve to be on the wrong end of your own bad mood. Be fair, circumspect.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Two or three important events must not be ignored — but also pay attention to all that happens in between.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can count on your good luck to hold throughout the day — but don't push it. Avoid unnecessary dangers if at all possible.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may have to assume some sort of emotional disguise to make your way safely through a highly personal danger-zone.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Avoid crowds to keep the stress level to a minimum. Be sure you are ready to take on a new responsibility when it comes your way.
